Sunday River looks westward for new trails

By MICHAEL DANIELS

With an eye toward possible future expansion, Sunday River Skiway Corporation has filed with the Maine Land Use Regulation Commission for a zoning change of approximately 350 acres in Riley Township.

The land in question is part of 4,000 acres the skiway purchased from International Paper Company in 1988. Eighty percent of that 4,000-acre parcel lies in Newry, the balance in the unorganized territory of Riley Township—where any future development would be overseen by LURC.

Sunday River President and General Manager Les Otten said the skiway has no immediate plans for expansion onto the parcel. But the skiway is seeking the zoning change

Roberts' Egg Farm going out of business

Roberts' Egg Farm, a Bethel institution for nearly 50 years, will close its doors for the last time this weekend.

Owner Suzy Harrington said she and her husband, Frank, are bringing their business to a close for reasons that are more personal than economic.

"It's just the right time to do it," she said, noting that she and her husband have had only one vacation in the 15 or so years since they purchased the business from her father, Stanley Roberts. He had begun the egg farm in 1946.

Running the business has meant a 365-day a year commitment, she said. "Now we want to sit back for a while, catch our breath and then do some of the things we have wanted to do but didn't have the time for."

The couple hopes to eventually put the buildings at the farm to another use, she said, but will not be rushing into any new projects right away.

She said that the Bethel egg route and some others will be taken over by Maple Grove Farms, of Mechanic Falls.

Maple Grove's owner, Paul Jones, is an old-time poultryman, she said, and his operation "is of the quality I was brought up on."

Roberts Egg Farm employed approximately ten people in addition to its owners.

Grade 4 MEA scores up, but 1 pupil out of 7 not counted

By MICHAEL DANIELS

This year's SAD #44 fourth graders scored above the state average in all areas of the Maine Educational Assessment testing.

Once again, however, the test results appear to show that the district is becoming more selective about what students are allowed to take the entire test—and have their scores counted toward the district average.

For those who did take the test this year, the results were impressive. Not only were the overall scores above the state average, but this year the district fourth graders exceeded the state average in writing—for the first time since the tests began in 1988.

In their three strongest content areas—science, social studies and humanities—more than a third of the local fourth graders scored in the highest quarter of all students taking the test.

This is the second year in a row that local fourth graders have done well on the MEA testing.

The SAD #44 cumulative scores for the most recent three years of fourth grade tests now exceed the state average in all content areas except writing.

This contrasts with the performance of district eighth and 11th graders, whose three-year cumulative scores lag behind the state's by 20 points and 65 points respectively.

Each of the three district elementary schools also did well on this year's test, with Andover Elementary School leading the way with an overall average of 305, followed by Crescent Park School at 285 and Woodstock Elementary School at 278.

Pupils at AES did especially well in humanities, reading and writing, while pupils at CPS achieved their highest score in humanities, and pupils at WES excelled once again in science.

Only in one area at one school (writing at WES) did a score fall below the state average, and that was by only five points. Overall, the three schools' scores were consistently strong across all six content areas of the test.

VALE OF THE TIRES—DEP inspector Brent McCarthy, two Maine forest rangers and Peter and Susan Gordon are dwarfed by Gordon's Albany tire pile, which contains an estimated 55,000 used tires. Another 18,000 are stored in a smaller pile nearby. Gordon says he has been reducing the size of this pile and plans to move all these tires to his Greenwood site once it is finally licensed. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

DEP to Gordon: No more tires to G'wood until violations fixed

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The state Department of Environmental Protection has ordered Peter Gordon to stop bringing tires into his Greenwood tire storage site until he has reduced the size of the pile already there.

The official notice of violation, mailed June 18, gave Gordon 30 days to reduce the current pile of approximately 30,000 tires to no more than 10,000 square feet at its base—the maximum permissible size for an unlicensed tire storage facility. (The 10,000 square foot limitation applies to "footprint" of the pile; there is no restriction on its height.)

DEP also ordered Gordon to correct a number of other alleged violations at the Greenwood site, including erosion problems, the lack of an adequate buffer strip for fire protection, and the lack of a containment system for oil and other fluids from the junked cars being dismantled at the site.

Youth exchange sets off for Spanish coast

It was off to Spain Monday for the 20 lucky youngsters taking part in this year's Spanish/American Youth Exchange.

The young travelers, age 13 and 14, and their six adult companions set off Monday morning from Telstar High School, bound for Barcelona, then for two weeks in Malaga and Mijas, on the Spanish coast of the Mediterranean Sea.

This marks the second time Bethel area youngsters have had the opportunity to visit Spain, under the exchange program sponsored each year by the Bethel Rotary Club. The Bethel area has also been the host for two groups of Spanish youngsters.

Jim Sysko, who is leading this year's group, said the youngsters have taken special Spanish classes at Telstar. "Most of them have the basics down pretty well," he said.

And if all else fails them, they can fall back on his son Dustin's Spanish-English translating calculator.

While in Spain the youngsters will be staying with host families, and will spend their time visiting historic sites, meeting Spanish children and taking advantage of the numerous tourist attractions on the Costa del Sol—including such international diversions as an amusement water park.

The group is expected to return on July 3.

Gordon has applied to the town of Greenwood and to the DEP for licenses to operate the facility, which is located off the Rabbit Road.

The Greenwood application was rejected by the town planning board in February of 1989 and has not been resubmitted. The DEP application has been on file for more than a year, as Gordon and DEP staffers have attempted to work out the physical and financial conditions of approval.

If the DEP approves Gordon's application, he will be able to increase the size of the pile beyond 10,000 square feet. Without the license he must keep the pile below that limit and must continue to abide by various regulations governing the operation of such a site.

The notice of violation was the result of Thursday's DEP inspection of the Greenwood and Albany facilities.

Brent McCarthy of the DEP Bureau of Solid Waste Management/Division of Licensing and Enforcement toured the sites, accompanied by two Maine forest rangers, representatives of the town board of selectmen and planning board, and Greenwood Code Enforcement Officer Sam Timberlake, who had set up the inspection tour.

McCarthy also toured a larger (55,000) pile in Albany. His first reaction on seeing the Albany pile was: "Wow!"

He said later that enforcement action at the Albany pile was unlikely, and that DEP would work with Gordon to have the Greenwood site licensed, so that he could eventually transfer the Albany tires to Greenwood.

McCarthy did order Gordon not to take in any new tires at the Albany site.

Gordon has repeatedly said that he in-

Opinions

Not fair to the Governor

A man at the Governor's office called last week to tell us we hadn't been fair in our coverage of the Governor, following up on his assurance May 29 of Department of Environmental Protection attention to our area's tire dumps.

May 29 was the day Gov. John R. McKernan made Bethel Capital for a Day, and held a town meeting at Gould Auditorium.

In response to local official's questions about the DEP's do-nothing attitude toward piles of tires in Bethel, Greenwood and Albany, McKernan said, "I can assure you as soon as I get back to Augusta, someone for the DEP will be up here."

We were impressed. He sounded like he meant business, and right now. When, after nearly two weeks without hearing of any follow-up on that assurance, we followed up with several phone calls to Augusta, only to find that one hand simply did not know what the other hand was doing.

We weren't impressed.

The man on the phone last week, however, explained that because Bethel and Greenwood Codes Enforcement Officer Sam Timberlake had already taken it upon himself to make an appointment with the DEP, that the matter had been handled in a timely manner. But that still doesn't explain why no one in the Governor's office could tell us that in the first phone call or the second. Nor does it explain why neither Lynch nor Bartlett were notified by the Governor's office of the upcoming appointment.

We'll never know now when the Governor's office, on its own, would have set up the appointment. But we suggest that the Governor might want to be a bit less hasty in his assurances in the future.

WALK TO BENEFIT AIDS

To the Editor:

Community AIDS Awareness Program needs help from the surrounding communities. We are part of the state-wide Maine Walk, which means people—lots of them. Of all ages.

Maine Walk will be held Sunday afternoon, Oct. 7, to benefit local community AIDS organizations. The Maine Walk is sponsored by the Maine AIDS Alliance, comprised of 14 local organizations from Fort Kent to York, of which Community AIDS Awareness Program (CAAP) represents the western Maine region.

To prepare for Maine Walk, a public meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 26, at the Franklin Street Methodist Church, Rumford.

Community residents are needed for a variety of committees, including route planning and way-stations, endorsements, pledge gatherers, publicity, registration, refreshments and walker-contacts.

Proceeds from Maine Walk will be used for educational and direct-services programs in the surrounding areas of each local organization. Surrounding areas included in the Community AIDS Awareness Program are Andover, Bethel, Bryant Pond, Byron, Canton, Carthage, Dixfield, Frye, Hanover, Locke Mills, Mexico, Milton Plantation, Newry, Peru, Rumford and Weld.

Maine Walk is open to people of all ages and the goal of CAAP is to have 250 walkers as its quota from western Maine. In addition to the June 26 meeting, interested parties may call Burt deFrees, 369-0259 (answering machine).

RECREATIONAL USE VS. INDUSTRY ACCESS NOT THE QUESTION

To the Editor:

In the May 23 edition of the Citizen, you printed a joint statement issued by Senators Mitchell and Cohen regarding designation of 12,000 acres of the Caribou Speckled Mountain area as wilderness. They stated, "We believe this compromise bill strikes an appropriate balance between those who wish to enjoy hiking and camping in a relatively pristine wilderness area and those who wish to preserve industry's access to public timber."

This has never been an issue of recreational use vs. industry access and I certainly hope that neither Senator Cohen or Mitchell is naive enough to believe that it is.

The decision to submit legislation designating the 12,000 acres as wilderness was made despite the opposition of area residents who took the time to attend hearings and write letters. The issues involved in this decision are those of land control and the environment. I believe that decisions regarding land use belong in the hands of local people and that multiple use and not preservation makes for a healthier forest.

EDITOR BIASED?

To the Editor:

Thank you to the Bethel voters who supported me in my bid for a School Board seat. Perhaps it is in my destiny to perform my civic duty in some other capacity or at another time.

However, I do wonder, in my disappointment, about "what if..." Most of my what if's I can direct only at myself, but there is one in particular that specifically concerns this newspaper.

I believe that newspaper articles are, ethically, to be accurate, truthful, unbiased and in context. The June 6 issue of the Bethel Citizen contained an article giving the individuals running for selectman and school board seats an opportunity to present their views to the public.

The article stated that I was "unavailable for comment earlier this week." True, my telephone was out of service because I moved the weekend before. I feel quite safe in assuming that at least one person in the Town Office knows where I work and would have given that information along with my home phone number if asked. The telephone at my place of employment are in perfect working order. There is usually someone there every weekday and answering machines on which you may leave a message if we are out.

Neither my co-workers nor the machines recorded a message for me from the Citizen office on Monday or Tuesday. I do not believe that Ms. Cross can use the excuse that she didn't know where I work. My name has been mentioned in her presence in direct connection to my employment and my name has appeared in this paper in direct connection to my employment. For future reference Ms. Cross, to give you the benefit of the doubt, I can be reached at the Chamber of Commerce office.

As the only candidate "unavailable for comment" in the article, I will give the opinion that Ms. Cross either allowed personal bias to shade her article or she was fortunate enough to reach all of the other candidates on her first call to them and decided that getting my opinion wasn't worth the effort of two, perhaps three calls.

In closing, thank you once again and rest assured that if there is a next time I will not commit the errors that produced my own what if's and hope that this newspaper will follow suit.

Rebecca Lawrence
(Editor's Note: Again, I apologize. I'm sure Rebecca Lawrence's name has been mentioned in my presence, as have several hundred other names in the past few months. I don't remember them all. Nor do I remember where all the people I have been introduced to work. I called Ms. Lawrence's number several times, including early morning and late evening, over the same two days that I called all the other candidates. There was no indication Ms. Lawrence's phone was out of service.)

Bethel Bancorp makes $1M agreement with private New Brunswick investor

Bethel Bancorp (NASDAQ:BTHL) announced last week that it has reached an agreement in principle with Ronald Goguen, of Moncton, New Brunswick, providing for the issuance of Bethel's Series A Preferred Stock to Goguen.

Under the terms of a letter of intent executed by the parties, Bethel will issue 45,454 shares of a newly-designated class of Series A Preferred Stock to Goguen, or his nominee, at an aggregate purchase price of approximately $1,000,000, or $22.00 per share.

The dividend rate of the Series A Preferred Stock is two percent below First National Bank of Boston's Prime Rate.

The Series A Preferred Stock will be convertible on a one-to-one basis for Bethel's common stock and will represent approximately 7.9 percent of Bethel's outstanding capital stock on a fully diluted basis.

The investment by Goguen in Bethel is contingent upon the satisfaction of certain conditions, including the execution of a definitive agreement between the parties.

James D. Delamater, President of Bethel, commented, "We are pleased to establish a relationship with Mr. Goguen and will add the additional capital to our existing capital base which represented approximately 14 percent of assets on April 30. The additional capital will enable Bethel to continue its program of operating and acquiring strong, community banks thereby adding to franchise value."

Bethel Bancorp, headquartered in Bethel, is the holding company parent of Bethel Savings Bank F.S.B. Bethel operates four full service banking offices in western Maine and had assets of approximately $74 million at April 30.

Bethel entered into a definitive agreement with Brunswick Federal Savings, F.A. on Oct. 25, 1989 providing for the acquisition of Brunswick by Bethel. Subject to receipt of approval from the Office of Thrift Supervision, the parties anticipate closing the transaction within the next few months.

Ronald Goguen is President and CEO of the Major Drilling Group which includes several mineral drilling companies. Goguen has a long history of successful operations in this field, as well as extensive experience as an insurance consultant and estate planner.

Delamater stated, "Ron Goguen's experience and business acumen will make him a valuable member of the Bethel team."

It is anticipated that Goguen will become a member of the Bethel Bancorp Board.

related problems.

The course was directed by Sheila Martin, M.D., of the Central Maine Medical Center Emergency Department and was coordinated by Sandy Smirles, R.N., prehospital education coordinator for CMMC's Emergency Medical Services Department. Other area physicians, nurses and paramedics assisted with the program.

Reception Sunday for river researchers

There will be a reception Sunday, June 24, for Geoff McGean and Jamie Smith, the students from the Atlantic Center for the Environment who are conducting this summer's natural resources inventory of the Androscoggin River.

The reception, sponsored by Friends of the Androscoggin, will be held at 7 p.m. at the Riverside Motel on Route 2 in Bethel.

From the Bethel Area

Chamber of Commerce

The Board of Directors of the Bethel Area Chamber met twice in the past week.

On Monday, June 11, they met for a Board Retreat at the Bethel Inn Lake House to discuss short and long range goals and the strengthening of the committee structure.

Among the goals that were discussed was the formation of a more representative legislative committee which will meet regularly when the State Legislature is in session.

If any businessperson is interested in being on this committee, they should call Chairman Leon Favreau at 836-2624.

The board also agreed to call quarterly general membership meetings and have them located and scheduled in some of our surrounding communities.

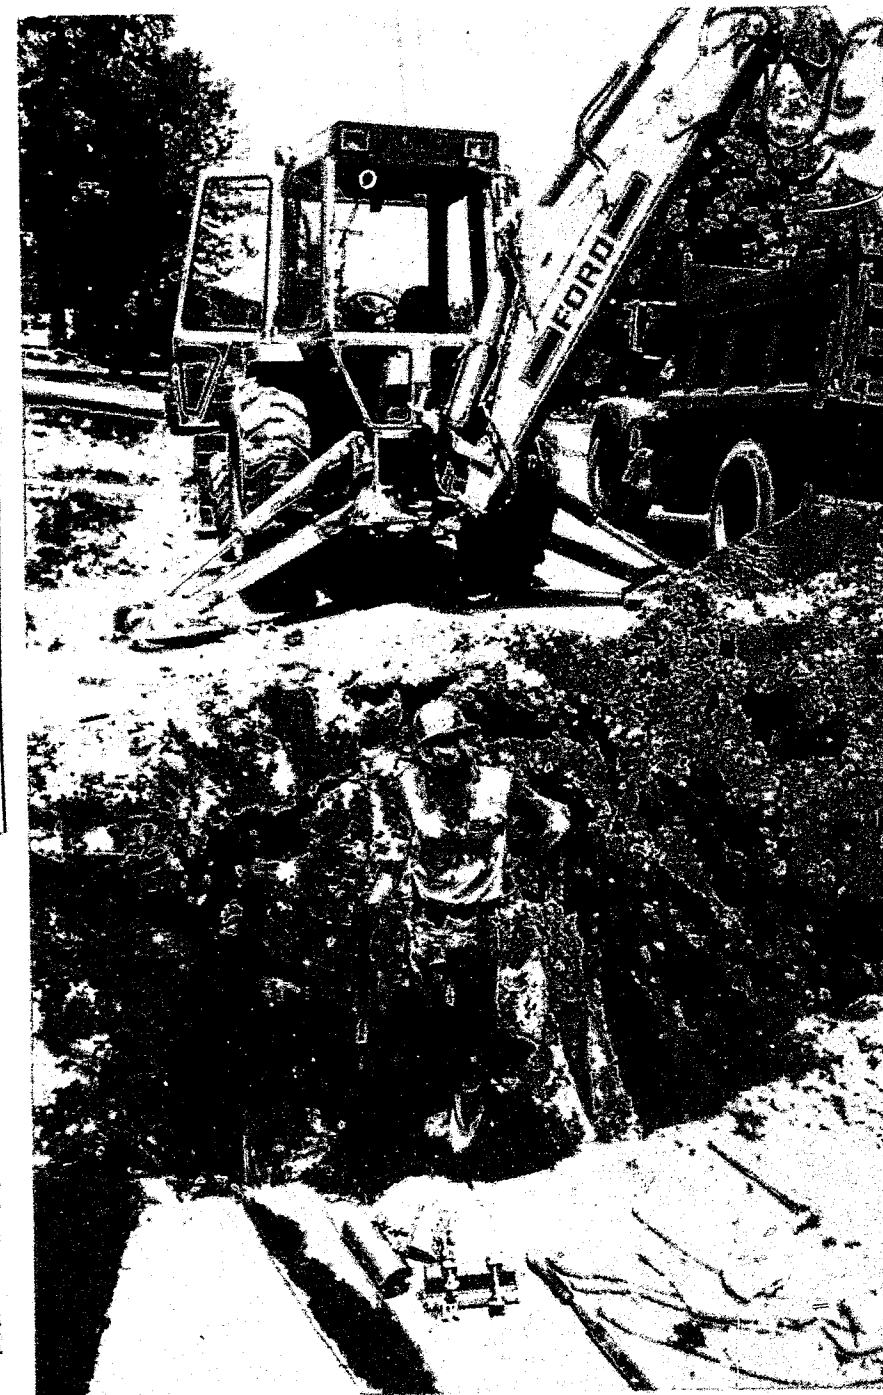

Executive Director Robin Zinchuk mentioned that she and the executive from the Brunswick Area Chamber are exploring ways to become "Sister Chambers."

It is thought that this could benefit our business people in joint packaging the coast and the inland regions as well as by having familiarization trips to each area. More information on this will be forthcoming.

Zinchuk reported that for Mollycodd Day the Chamber is planning the road race (one mile for ages 14 and five miles for over 14), will sell lobster rolls, beverage and T-shirts on the Common, will operate a game of chance and has arranged to have the Sesame Street character and Ronald McDonald present to entertain the children as well as the Mollicodd Mixers Square Dance Club.

The Chamber also has solicited the sponsors for the Woodmen's Competition, which will offer over $500 for the winners.

The first annual Bethel Art Fair will be held on the Bethel Common on Saturday, June 30, raindate Saturday, July 7.

IN THE TRENCH—A water pipe on Elm Street sprung a leak last week and the Bethel Water District was called in to dig out around the pipe and repair it. According to water district trustee Robert Saunders, the 2-inch galvanized pipe is one of the pipes scheduled for replacement as part of the town's planned Community Development Block Grant project. Pictured in the trench is Donnie Katlin, assistant supervisor for the water district.

Newry to vote on road, fire station and possible purchase of grange hall

Newry will hold a special town meeting tonight (June 20) at 7 p.m. to allow townspeople to vote on three articles.

Voters will be asked to authorize the selectmen to spend $160,000 to build and equip the fire station in the Sunday River side of town.

Ground for the station has already been purchased and prepared for construction. The money to build and equip the station was raised at earlier town meetings, but requires the final approval of the voters before it can be spent.

The town recently completed building and equipping a station on the Bear River side of town. The Sunday River station will be its second such facility.

Voters will also be asked to accept the Barker Mountain subdivision road as a town road.

Developer Bryce Yates had asked that the road be approved at this year's annual town meeting, but voters went along with the selectmen's recommendation that they put off accepting the road until it had sat out the winter.

Voters will also be asked to indicate whether they wish to have the selectmen pursue the possibility of the town purchasing the Bear River Grange for use as a town hall.

First Selectman Steve Wight said approval of this article would be only a preliminary step toward a possible purchase. If the selectmen found the idea to be feasible, voters would be asked at a subsequent town meeting to authorize the actual purchase.

The special town meeting will be held in the town office building.

NEWRY'S LANDING LEASE—Roy Newton presents the lease for Newry's Landing to Bethel Town Manager Rodney Lynch, as Friends of the Androscoggin River President Steve Wight looks on. The West Bethel site, located at the end of the Ferry Road and named for Newton's father, will soon be a public access point for the Androscoggin River. The town of Bethel will use state funds to build a canoe ramp and parking area. The five-year lease agreement was worked out by the Friends of the Androscoggin and approved by Bethel voters at last week's town meeting.

New legal outreach program in Bethel to offer elderly free consultations

Legal Services for the Elderly, Inc. is pleased to announce the establishment of an outreach site in Bethel for walk-in legal consultations.

This site will be at the Methodist Church on Main Street in Bethel. An attorney will be available on the third Thursday of each month, commencing June 21 to provide free legal services to area residents over the age of 60 years.

This site, named by local attorney Gordon Gillies on a volunteer basis, will be open between the hours of 1-4 p.m. It is handicapped accessible.

"The grader isn't any bigger than it was five years ago," Brown said. "It's the driver that hits the sidewalks."

Also, against the recommendation of the selectmen, voters defeated a request to return to the general fund at year's end balances in the fire department and ambulance accounts. The people voted 44-31 to carry over the balances in those accounts to the next year.

In agreement with the selectmen's recommendations, voters approved:

- * $146,550 for the general government account, up from $140,419 last year;

Bethel planners investigate fee waivers; temporary signs

by CHRISTY CROSS

The Bethel Planning Board last Thursday night discussed but did not act on changes in Site Plan application fees and restrictions on temporary signs.

What started off as a proposal to increase fees for site plan approval evolved into a continuing investigation of the possibility of waiving, or reducing, site plan review fees under certain conditions.

Bethel Planning Assistant Rockie Graham, in a pre-meeting memo to the board, "I would suggest that larger projects be asked to pay more because it takes longer to review them. The present $50 fee for each additional unit often does not cover the cost of my time to review complicated projects. Nor do the CEO fees adequately cover Sam Timberlake's time. This increase would probably cost the developer less in the long run."

Graham recommended that projects involving four or more units pay site plan fees of $100 per unit and CEO fees of $100 per unit.

Graham said at the meeting, "We're still charging less money than any other, larger towns."

Planning Board Chairman Reggie Brown said, "I understand where you're coming from. You've been hanging around (Town Manager) Rodney (Lynch) so long you're picking up his ideas about fees."

Instead, the planning board directed Graham to call the Maine Municipal Association to ask about the legality of waiving, or partially waiving, fees for applicants coming in for second, or third, reviews in the same buildings.

Board member Don Fenevy suggested that if there's more work than Graham has time to do, the board should hold a special meeting.

The planning board also agreed to consider defining or establishing controls over temporary signs, as well as to consider developing a specific sign ordinance for proposal.

"There's absolutely no control over (temporary signs) whatsoever," said CEO Timberlake. "Take a ski shop that's having a big sale... they put out a big sign that just says SALE."

Chief Stowell completes DARE training

By CHRISTY CROSS

Bethel Police Chief Brian Stowell recently returned from a two-week Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) training school in Portland, which qualifies him to teach the DARE program in local schools.

Beginning next fall, Stowell will spend at least three days of his work week for 17 school weeks in an effort to help area sixth graders resist drugs.

"The word seems to be out that the kids are less likely to turn to drugs and alcohol and less likely to tolerate it in others" when they have completed a DARE program, Stowell said in a recent interview.

Stowell will spend his program time with the sixth graders, teaching DARE lessons and participating with them in general activities.

The 17-plan DARE lesson book includes chapters on Drug Use and Misuse, Consequences, Ways to Say No, Building Self-Esteem and Alternatives to drug use.

Quoting from a DARE manual, Stowell says, "It's a substance use prevention education program designed to equip elementary school children with skills for resisting peer pressure to experiment with drugs and alcohol."

Stowell, who has already done some work in the schools, says, "The Crescent Park School fifth graders are really prepared because of the intense way Lynn (Boschetti, guidance counselor) has been teaching the Children Are People (CAP) program. "This is a credit to her," he said, noting that at Andover Elementary School and at Woodstock Elementary School the CAP program is administered "hit or miss."

Stowell said one of the things he learned at the DARE training, which was attended by 41 police officers, mostly from Maine, was that the drug problem—its usage and attitudes—are about the same in all areas of the state.

"Kids are kids all over," he said. "The problem is everywhere, not just in the other guy's area."

"I really bought the notion of getting to the kids at an earlier age," Stowell said. He noted that, unlike drug abuse prevention programs 20 years ago, "DARE doesn't use scare tactics."

What is does, he said, is it "teaches kids about the consequences of risk taking."

"I've always liked the idea of teaching and this was a way to do that, yet stay in a job I like better than teaching," Stowell says. "This is an opportunity to develop a relationship with the kids."

In answer to a possible concern: "Am I going to be rattling on the kids and busting their moms," should a student tell of drug or alcohol abuse at home, Stowell says, "The DARE officer at that point, is in a non-law enforcement role." But, he adds, he would have to deal with the problem in an intervention way, which has raised nearly $9,000, will also pay the salary for his replacement while he is in the classroom this fall.

"We're not going to be spending the class periods talking about who's using drugs," he said. "That's not the focus of the program and it doesn't need to be dealt with in the class."

Stowell's training was sponsored by the Maine Department of Public Safety and administered through the Commonwealth of Virginia's Department of Education and Department of State Police, the Eastern Regional Training Center for DARE.

His training costs, between $800 and $1,000 in meals and lodging and in salary for an officer of the Bethel Police Department to replace him from May 14 to May 25, he said, were paid for by the local DARE project.

The local DARE group, Stowell said, which has raised nearly $9,000, will also pay the salary for his replacement while he is in the classroom this fall.

He said thanks are due to this group and to the dedication and commitment of the people of this community for their support of DARE.

This last week of school has been another busy one. On Monday every class had a chance to choose its last book through the RIF, Reading is Fundamental, program. Children finished up their work for the Curriculum Fair, which was held Tuesday afternoon. Grades 2-6 set up their displays in the gymnasium. A lot of fun and hard work went into these projects. Congratulations one and all.

On Tuesday morning grades 2-6 took turns visiting the kindergarten and first grades to view their own Curriculum Fair. The younger ones were proud to show us their projects and we enjoyed supporting their efforts.

My big news this week is to announce the many winners from our annual field day held at Hibern Academy. The day was beautiful and children participated in several events. There were many close calls, but the following winners were disclosed:

Running Broad Jump—Chester Beauchesne, first; Tim Farrar, second; Jason Bradeen, third.

Sofball Throw—Derek Boutlier, first; Chester Beauchesne, second; Kevin Hutchins, third.

Frisbee Throw—Jason Eastman, first; Derek Boutlier, second; Andrew Bolstridge, third.

There were several races and the winners were: Arthur Campbell, first; Audrey Tikander, second; Renee Pratt and Tim Farrar, third; in the 50 yard dash.

Jon Haas, first; Chester Beauchesne, second; Jason Bradeen, third; in the 100 yard dash.

Chester Beauchesne, first; Derek Boutlier, second; Jason Bradeen, third; in the 220 yard dash.

Chester Beauchesne, first; Jason Bradeen, second; Arthur Campbell, third; in the 440 yard dash.

Chester Beauchesne, first; Tim Farrar, second; Jason Bradeen, third; in the 880 yard run.

The relay race ended as expected with the sixth grade in first place, the fifth grade in second place and the fourth grade in third place. Congratulations go to all team members: Derek Boutlier, Chester Beauchesne, Arthur Campbell and Jason Bradeen, grade 6; Joshua Dunham, Georgin Glasgow, Tim Farrar and Scott Cote, grade 5; Derek Leonard, Audrey Tikander, William Gravier and Charlie Buker, grade 4.

Sixth grade winners of the Sack Race were Renee Pratt, Derek Boutlier and Jon Haas.

Fifth grade Sack Race winners were Karen Yates, Scott Cote and Amy Boutlier. And fourth grade Sack Race winners were Audrey Tikander, Matt Haas and Henry Bindbeutel.

Winners of the three-legged race in one, two, three order by grades are: Sixth grade: Katie Walton and Darcey Robertson, Heather Edwards and Willo Andrews.

Fifth grade: Joshua Dunham and Jason Eastman, Elmyr Cole and Angie Waterhouse, Tim Farrar and Scott Cote.

Fourth grade: Henry Bindbeutel and Marc Cote, Tovah Everett and Jeannine Dembski, Travis Cutler and Shawn Coffin.

After all the activities we ate our picnic lunches and prepared to return to school to receive our ribbons.

The highlight of the day was the Tug-of-War. We waited until our return to school to compete in this favorite event.

The fourth graders emerged victorious for the first time ever. They outnumbered and outplayed the fifth and sixth grades and they are the new champions.

The second and third graders held their own field day with lots of relay races and games on the same day, but remained at West Paris all day. Each

Stephens Memorial Hospital Auxiliary awards scholarships

On Thursday, June 14 the Auxiliary of Stephens Memorial Hospital (SMH) presented the 1990 Employee Scholarship Awards to Natalie Marshall and Lucy Rogers, two employees of the Norway Hospital who are pursuing their education in the health care profession.

Becky Campos, First Vice-President of the SMH Auxiliary and Judy Lotito, Second Vice-President of the SMH Auxiliary joined Western Maine Health Care Corporation President Harrison F. Hahn in awarding the scholarships to Marshall and Rogers.

Natalie Marshall of North Waterford will use her scholarship to assist with tuition at the Southern Maine Technical College, where she is working for a degree as a Dietetic Technician.

Lucy Rogers, of Bethel, is studying at the Central Maine Technical College, where the scholarship will be applied toward obtaining an Associate Degree in Nursing.

This year, in addition to these two employee scholarships, Stephens Memorial Hospital awarded a scholarship to Telstar High School student, Becky Sue Witter, to assist her in pursuing her education in the health care field.

SIXTH GRADERS at the Agnes Gray School in West Paris received awards in a school-wide assembly last Thursday for completion of their studies at the school. The students, in alphabetical order, are: Willis Andrews, Chet Beauchesne, Charlie Billings, Andrew Bolstridge, Derek Boutlier, Jason Bradeen, Arthur Campbell, Carrie Cole, Heather Edwards, Angie Farnum, Jonathan Haas, Austin Hayes, Kevin Hutchins, Renee Pratt, Darcey Robertson, Tanya Rosenberg, Michelle Spencer, Katie Walton, and Liberty Woodworth. Pictured with the students is William Koch, school principal and sixth grade teacher.

class was divided up into teams and all students went home with ribbons and happy memories of winning.

Our final farewell to our sixth graders and our awards assembly was held on Thursday afternoon. I will write one more column next week to honor many more students and to include the results of the annual faculty vs. sixth grade softball game.

A week in the life of HILLARY HARRISON

Hello, I'm sorry that my article wasn't in last week. I didn't get it to the Citizen on time.

Stine's parents came here for Stine's graduation which went well. She thought that it was weird to change the tassels over. I don't know why. Stine's parents also came to see the dance recital this year. It's Pinocchio and Stine and Heather are the fox and cat. They went to Niagara Falls last Tuesday. They had fun.

And one weekend they went to Bar Harbor. They were supposed to look at the ocean. But all they saw was fog. So they bought a video that showed all of the sights that they were supposed to see.

You should see my tongue last week. It was all gross looking. I had bumps all over the inside of my mouth. I can't even explain it. I had to go to the doctors and get a prescribed medicine that tasted awful.

I'm so glad that school is out. It's going to be a great summer I can just feel it. See ya.

Mt. Washington to host 'Climb to the Clouds'

The 7.6 mile long Mt. Washington Auto Road to the summit of New England will once again be the site of exciting automotive action when the "Climb to the Clouds" auto race returns June 22-24.

Last run in 1961, 100 years after the road's opening, the Mt. Washington Auto Road Hillclimb is expected to attract a field of more than 30 top cars and drivers from the United States and Europe.

A variety of automotive manufacturers from Japan, Germany, Sweden and the United States will be attempting to illustrate their engineering superiority by besting their competitors in this historic event which was first run in 1904.

The winning time in 1904 was 24 minutes, 37 3/5 seconds. This year, all racers will be driving to break the current mountain ascent record of nine minutes, 13 seconds, set in a specially-built Porsche Carrera in the last Hillclimb by Bill Ruten of Centerbrook, Conn.

Sanctioned by the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA), the Hillclimb is described as "a sprint rather than a marathon" by New Hampshire racer Tim O'Neil. O'Neil is not alone in predicting the record will be broken in this year's event, no matter what the weather.

Climbing to the highest point in New England, the road features more than 20 sharp curves and rises 4,600 feet of elevation with an average grade of 12 percent.

As described by chief steward of the race John Buffum, the narrow road to the 6,288 foot summit of Mt. Washington is,

"60 percent asphalt and 40 percent dirt... is constantly making changes of direction..." and "...throughout its entire length, the road goes fairly steeply uphill."

Negotiating this challenging course will be top national and international rally and race car drivers including: Finnish National Champion Saku Viernmaa of Espoo, Finland, driving a Mazda 4WD 323; Paul Choiniere of Williston, Vt., winner of the 1988 and 1989 10-event North American Rally Championship, driving a Audi Quattro; Tim O'Neil of Whitefield, N.H., winner of the 1989 SCCA PRO Rally Production Class Championship, driving a Volkswagen Rallye Golf; and Irish native Noel Lawler, currently of Starksboro, Vt., driving a Mazda GTX.

Six classes of racing vehicles are expected to compete in the race reaching speeds of more than 90 miles per hour. These include: Unlimited horsepower—specially-built cars and highly modified street cars; two divisions of the SCCA Amateur Racing Class—ranging from Austin-Healey Sprites and Mini-Coopers to Camaros and Corvettes; two divisions of "Showroom Stock" Racing Autos—automobiles with standard engines and transmissions and minor suspension modifications accepted; and Vintage—pre-1982 automobiles (record holder Ruten is slated to compete in this division with his 1961 Hillclimb-winning Porsche Carrera).

Time trials are scheduled for 9-8 a.m. on Friday and Saturday, June 22 and 23, with the Climb to the Clouds race slated for 9 a.m.-12 noon, rain, fog or shine, Sunday, June 24.

Spectators are welcomed at this event, but will be limited due to the ecologically delicate nature of the upper half of Mt. Washington.

Designated viewing areas include the base (general admission fee, $10), halfway station ($20 fee includes admission and shuttle to halfway point); and summit ($30 fee for driver and own car to summit, $10 per additional person—advanced sale only and must leave for summit by 8 a.m.).

Parking will be provided at Wildcat Ski Area with spectators shuttled to the Mt. Washington Auto Road base beginning at 6 a.m. on Sunday.

The weather—unpredictable Mt. Washington weather—wind, rain, pea soup fog, cold temperatures—may not be daunting to the drivers, but all spectators traveling to the halfway point or summit should come prepared for the possibility of extreme temperature change. The Auto Road will be open to the public from 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, June 22 and 23, and from 1-5:30 p.m. on Sunday.

The Eagle Mountain House located on Carter Notch Road in Jackson will serve as race headquarters throughout the event. For further information about the "Climb to the Clouds" or for ticket information, call the Mt. Washington Auto Road at 603-466-3988.

The revue will include favorite Cole Porter tunes as well as songs from such popular Broadway musicals "Hair," "Cabaret," "Fantasticks," "West Side Story," and "King and I."

Cast members include Linda Blackman, Bob Bohren, Kathy Burke, Thea Dunn, Dennis Arsenault, Mike Burke, Jim Burke and Dick Blackman as emcee.

Mahoosuc Arts to showcase local performing artists

For the past four years the Mahoosuc Arts Council has presented a variety of performing artists in the Bethel area schools and communities.
 This year, in order to expand the Mahoosuc Arts' services to the Bethel area communities, the Council will combine a fund-raising event with a Showcase of local western Maine performing artists.
 The Showcase will be held in conjunction with Sunday River's Fall Festival on Oct. 6 and 7.
 Performing artists from mime to magic or classical to folk and rock are invited to apply by calling Connie St. Pierre at 824-3246 or picking up an application form at Prim's Pharmacy in Bethel.
 The deadline for application is July 16. Applications will be reviewed that week by the Showcase Committee and applicants will be notified soon thereafter.

 Artists who are chosen to perform in the Showcase will be asked to donate their time in exchange for the opportunity to perform and gain visibility. There will also be an opportunity for performers to sell recordings and other promotional materials during the weekend.
 Sunday River's Fall Festival weekend draws many people to the skiway. Other Columbus Day weekend activities include a craft show featuring local artists, a mountain bike race and the Hike/Walk/Run, a foot race to benefit the Mahoosuc Arts Council.
 This weekend is also the opening weekend for Sunday River Season's pass sales and many condominium owners will be at Sunday River for the festivities.

Sunday River to the Sea

LINED UP AND WAITING—Over 500 bicyclists gathers at Sunday River Skiway last Friday morning for the 10 a.m. kick-off of the Maine Lung Association's 'Sunday River to the Sea' bicycle trek. Preparations for the three-day event, which concluded on Sunday in Rockland, included 3,000 granola bars and 1,500 gallons of Crystal Spring Water.

BANDAIDS ANYONE? Bryan West of Old Orchard Beach, who said he traveled last year to Denmark to race his bicycle, checks his pack for a ready supply of Band-aids prior to taking off Friday.

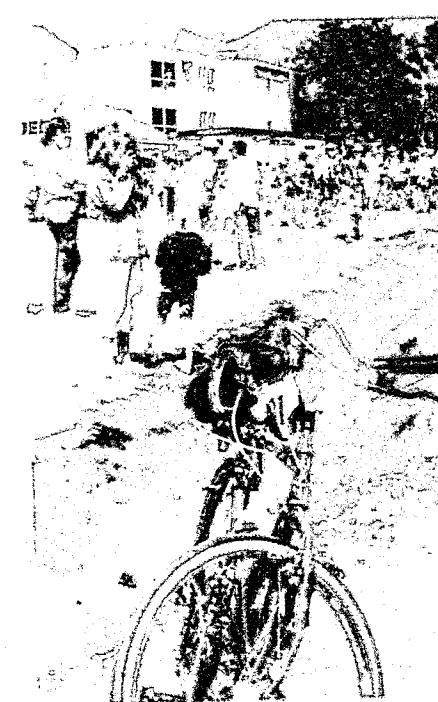

NO, IT'S NOT GOODBYE—Bob Couillard of Cumberland kisses his wife Jeanne before taking off. But the couple won't be separated long. Says Jeanne, "I'm going, too—as a volunteer. I don't like to sweat."

THESE 'SLOWPOKES' gave fair warning, with T-shirts depicting a bicyclist riding atop a turtle.

MOVING TIME—A group of bicyclists rented a moving truck to bring bicycles and equipment from the Bath-Brunswick area.

AN UNIDENTIFIED photographer focuses in on the trek lineup.

PART OF the trek paraphernalia.

SMILE PRETTY—Tim Gaudet and Lori Broadhurst of Gorham pose while Robin Koepfel of Portland takes their pre-trek picture.

REAR GUARD—Mark McAfee of Gray said his daughter made him bring her Chuckie Doll with him for company on the trek.

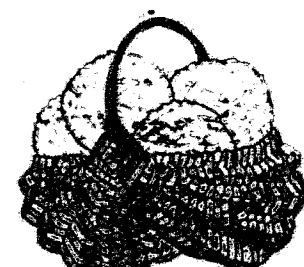

THE STRETCH is everything.

Oxford Extension honors outstanding volunteers

At the recent Annual Meeting of the Oxford County Extension Association, Marion Parsons was one of three volunteers recognized for their outstanding service to Extension Programs.

Parsons first became involved in Extension when she was just 10 years old as she joined the Upton 4-H group.

Her 4-H involvement continued into adulthood, leading the Wonder Workers 4-H group in Rumford Center for 12 years. Parsons' dedication to Extension does not end with 4-H. She also is involved with the Extension Homemakers, beginning with the East Livermore Extension Group, and continuing with the Oxford Extension Homemakers, where she has remained an active member for many years. She continues to be a vital member of the Extension Homemaker organization—both as president of her local group and at the county level.

Her warmth, practicality, hard work, and humor are appreciated in any Extension effort.

The other two volunteers honored at the meeting were Judy Berg, president of the Small Woodland Owners Association of Maine and Jean Foster, who has been a leader in the Tally-Ho 4-H Horse Club.

Bethel Senior Citizens

The Bethel Senior Citizens met at the West Bethel Grange Hall, June 13, with 60 present. President Muriel Faudi welcomed new members Arthur and Ruth Barker of Gilead, and Gladys Cross, accompanied by family members.

Celebrating birthdays were Carolyn Brooks, who won a door prize, Faith Brown and Florence Riggs. Bertha Flanders and Eldon Hathaway were not present.

Treasurer Sarah Stevens reported 38 members under, and 15 over, 80 years old.

Helen Saunders, Sunshine Committee, reported on cards sent and provided cards to be signed and sent to ill and shut-in members: Jean Coolidge, Emily Saunders, Annie Olson, Vera and Guy Parker, Lillian Bartlett, Maude Danforth, Maxine Brown and Leah Witter. Betty Blake, fund-raising committee, reported that over $85 had been donated in pennies and the collections would be extended until fall.

The trip to Bailey Island, July 18, needs more people. If interested call 1-800-962-9800 or Muriel Faudi. An alternative trip would be Naples.

Ray Harrington spoke of a Bereavement, Separation and Loss Seminar to be held in South Paris by Bill Bates, Aug. 30. It is open to the public and free and could be helpful.

Rita Head gave an informal talk of her trip to Russia. She showed pictures and items purchased in Moscow and Leningrad and she answered questions and described her interesting trip.

The next meeting will be the annual picnic held at Powell's Campground in Hanover, July 11. Members are asked to bring food to share and items in paper bags for the auction.

Oxford Pomona Grange

Frederick Robie Grange hosted Oxford Pomona for its June 5 meeting, serving a supper to around 60 people.

Members of the Pink Sash family welcomed were Ruby Whitney of the Maine State Grange C.W.A. and husband Clyde; Hazel Conant, treasurer of the Maine State Grange and husband Francis, former deputy; Lewis Bisbee, deputy and Myrtle Bisbee, junior deputy.

Reports were given by the C.W.A. Youth Deal Awareness and Scholarship Committees.

A donation was sent to the Maine State Grange Agriculture Scholarship Fund. Names were presented for the Grange Farm Family Award.

The Grange voted to pay the expenses of the lecturer to attend the 75th New England Lecturer's Conference at the University of Maine at Farmington, Aug. 12-16.

The address of welcome was given by Nat Green PM of Frederick Robie Grange and the response by Richard Felt, Pomona Master.

Mystery march winners were Dot Canwell, Marion Green and Marion York. Happy birthday was sung to Elizabeth Bragg, Carl Brooks and Winfield Bennett.

A Memorial Service was conducted in memory of Lillian Lovejoy and Anita Ferrand of Pleasant Valley Grange; Bertha Witham of West Paris Grange; Artha and Gladys Nisemi of Bear Mountain Grange; Annie Stone, Elinor Calden and Henry Gagne of Oxford Grange; Jean Vancour of Winthrop Grange, Shelburne, N.H.; and Steven, Ralph and Vida Bennett.

Names are to be brought to the next meeting for the Pomona Grange Community Citizen Award.

Next meeting will be June 26 at Bear River Grange Hall, Newry. This will be election of officers and all members are urged to attend.

There is no meeting in July. The August meeting will be held at West Paris Grange on Aug. 7. This will be Pink Sash Night with state officers filling the chairs.

Bethel Chamber hosts planning conference

On Tuesday, June 8, the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce newly formed, six-member Long Range Planning Committee met at the Sudbury Inn for a day of conference with members of other communities statewide.

Chamber representatives from other communities attending the afternoon presentation were John Fullerton from Camden, Monica Adams Acton from Oxford Hills, Andrea Nurse from Sugarloaf and Jennifer Vachon from the Maine Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Also present was Beverly Baum representing the Northern Oxford Task Force on Economic Development located in Rumford.

A wide cross-section of local citizens attended the conference, including educators, business people, community leaders and representatives from Sunday River Ski Resort.

Among the topics discussed were the effects of education on town growth, the necessity of a well-funded local chamber with specific goals and the improvement of the Chamber's ability to progressively use statewide resources to attract and secure new industry in the Bethel area. Also discussed was the theory that the only growth-oriented local business being promoted is tourism. Although largely this would appear to be true, available state statistics point out that the service industry represents the second largest number of area jobs and is expected to account for the highest amount of new employment both statewide and nationwide within the next ten years.

Actively promoting a year round recreation center, for which there is an ever growing demand, will ultimately increase the ability to provide better jobs and place a greater value on a career in the service industry.

Following the lively and informative afternoon session the group moved to the Holidae House, also on Main Street, for a social hour, follow by a buffet dinner provided by the Chamber committee. Out of town guests were provided with accommodations in appreciation of their efforts.

Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

On June 7 Jackson-Silver Unit #68, American Legion Auxiliary held its latest meeting.

Poppy Chairman Vera Cross reported that poppy sales this year amounted to $150.26, quite an increase over previous years.

All the proceeds from the sale of these poppies is devoted to work of the Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation Committees of both the Legion and Auxiliary, including assisting needy local veterans and their families.

A letter from National President Betty Calder contained information and her thoughts about flag-burning and desecration and the need for a Constitutional Amendment to make such desecration illegal.

A petition was enclosed calling for such an amendment and Unit members voted to circulate this petition. Anyone who feels strongly about this issue and wishes to sign the petition may contact one of these members: Noreen Russo, Florence "Honey" Bailey, Leah Deagan, Lillian Herrick, Vera Cross, Grace Smith, Kathleen McAllister, Mary Lyon or Olive Risko. The petition must be returned to American Legion Headquarters before the end of the month.

The next Auxiliary meeting, originally scheduled for July 5, has been changed to July 12 at the home of Mary Lyon on North Pond and it will be preceded by a cookout at 5:30 p.m. Those who wish may come at 5, in time for a swim. All members are invited, but it is requested that all who plan to attend notify Mary Lyon, 685-2321, or by mail at Route 2, Box 4170, Bryant Pond, in advance. This will be the only meeting in July.

As part of Woodstock's 175th birthday celebration in July, the Auxiliary will be giving a public supper at the Woodstock Elementary School on July 28 from 5:30-8:30. Adults, $4, children under 12, $2. More information will follow.

The annual family picnic of the Post and Unit will be on Aug. 16. All members are encouraged to attend and bring their families.

The first regular meeting of the fall season is scheduled for Sept. 6.

Finally, the highlight of the Auxiliary's last meeting was the presentation of Life Membership cards to three members: Grace Smith, Vera Cross and Leah Deagan. Life Membership is reserved for outstanding members of a Unit and these three ladies meet that criterion. Each has served the Unit as its president and in many other offices and projects as well as in their communities in numerous ways.

Upton

By ARLINE BERNIER

The polls were open Tuesday with Helen Jordan and Arline Bernier serving as ballot clerks. 14 of the 37 registered Democrats or Republicans cast ballots. Other came into the office for town business or other matters and the day passed quickly.

The Planning Board met Monday evening with five members present. Mr. LaRiviere presented an application for permit to repair or extend his existing building four inches. Some disagreement among the Board resulted in having this matter go before the Board of Appeals.

The Board decided to renew the twice monthly meetings for the summer, the second one for a work meeting.

VI Bernier spent a few days in Carlsle, Mass. last week.

Dennis Casco returned home from the Berlin Hospital where he is recuperating from the bruises and broken ribs received from the car accident.

Two graduations during the rainy weekend as Eric Bernier and Vicky Flanders of North Waterford were among the seniors of Oxford Hills. Sunday Mt. Blue awarded a diploma to Nancy Atwood and we enjoyed the ceremony.

Eric at the Atwood home in Strong. Both of these commencement exercises were interesting because with loud-speakers everyone is able to hear the presentations. This is in contrast to the first such events I attended when the audience sat restlessly through it totally unaware of whether the speakers were offering words of wisdom or reciting Mother Goose.

So. Woodstock

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

Arthur and Sylvia Andrews visited Olive Davis Sunday. Esther Davis, also was up helping. Arthur and she set out another dozen tomato plants. I lost every plant with the frost. Imagine frost in June.

Esther Davis has been up with me off and on for the past two weeks. Patsy Tibbels called on us Saturday afternoon awhile.

Moose have been reported roaming the farm here. Some one reported, also, seeing a baby one.

The rainy weather does help the gardens to grow. The seeds have sprouted well.

Mrs. Carl Brooks is entertaining at their annual fir party for the Universalist Church this week. They intended to pick the fir on Monday p.m. but the rain bothered them. Plans so they had to postpone it until next week.

Amanda Midon is one of the members of the dancing class in Bethel. They gave their program Thursday and Friday this week.

I want to thank all who have signed cards for me during my recovery from the cat bite. It's better but not just right yet. Thank you.

Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Louise Tetley and Gilbert Seeley were in Rumford, Saturday, June 9, and took time to visit with Amy and Roger Hanscom at the Cozy Inn who looked fine and cheerful. Ruth and Arthur Cummings were also there so we spent a nice time visiting and talking about almost everything.

The Newry Mothers' Club had their annual banquet at the Town and Country Inn with 14 members and two guests, Janis and Alison Black. The next meeting will be Sept. 10 at the Town Building with election of officers and a tasting party.

The Newry ladies "who bowl for fun" in Rumford at the Oxford Lanes were Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Louise Tetley, Gil Seeley and Olive Anderson, Rena Powers was a guest. Karlene was high on the singles and also high on the triple beating Betsy by one pin. All went to lunch and shopping.

Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark and yours truly were in Belfast, Thursday, June 14. While there visited with Karlene's twin sister who celebrated her birthday. Also called on her nephew and his family and brought back her here in Newry celebrating Karlene and Reginald's wedding anniversary. Their son, Brent, and friend, Terry O'Dowd, from Providence, R.I. will join them for the weekend.

Mammography Clinic held at Stephens Memorial Hospital

The staff of the Imaging Department of Stephens Memorial Hospital and volunteers from the American Cancer Society recently offered a special Mammography Clinic at the hospital. Over the course of the three evenings when the clinic was open to the public for mammography screenings, more than 50 women requested examinations.

Dr. John Gage and Dr. Donald Ware donated their time to provide the exams. With their exam, women were shown an instructional film, which stressed the need for regular breast exams and demonstrated the procedure for a self-examination.

Screenings such as the Mammography Clinic provide accurate and useful information to the general public and are offered as a service to the community by Stephens Memorial Hospital, which is an affiliate of Western Maine Health Care Corporation. With the assistance of volunteers like those from the American Cancer Society and Drs. Gage and Ware, community education programs such as the Mammography Clinic contribute a very valuable service to the community and promote an increased awareness of health care prevention, diagnosis and treatment.

Allergic Reactions to Insect Bites & Stings

Bites and stings from insects such as ants, wasps, yellow jackets, hornets, and bees are more common during summer months. For most individuals, bites and stings are painful but uneventful. However, for many of the more than one million people who are allergic to insect venom, a single bite or sting can be fatal.

Prevention: Tight fitting clothes can prevent insects from getting between the material and the skin. Light-colored clothing (e.g., white or light khaki) has been found to be less attractive to bees. Persons with known allergies should avoid scented soap, perfume, suntan lotion, and bright, shiny jewelry. When outdoors, wear long-sleeved shirts, a hat, and socks and shoes (not sandals). Use an insect repellent before going outdoors. Spray garbage cans with an insecticide. Keep food stored properly to prevent ants from congregating.

Treatment: Pain and itching may be controlled with ice packs or one of several topical products containing a local anesthetic. When individuals with known allergies are stung, they should keep the amount of venom in the blood low by removing the stinger and wrapping a tie around the arm or leg above the sting. Get to a hospital or physician's office as soon as possible.

Saturday, June 9, I went to Norway and got Ellen Coffin and went to the Woodstock High Alumni Banquet at Telstar cafeteria. A delicious smorgasbord. There were 111 there. The oldest class was 1920, Charles Noyes and Mansfield Packard. Mansfield told about the times they had. They most of the time walked from Locke Mills. Since difference than now-a-days. Alice Roberts was the only one in the 60 year class.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Theodore Brett in the passing of his wife, Charlotte Brett.

Monday, June 11, Wilbur Libby and I went to Avis Ellingwood's to make plans for a trip to Shorelands in Harrison for the Senior Citizens. They will meet July 3 at 10:30 a.m. at the Baptist Church area and fill the cars. A suggested plan for Aug. 7 to go to Mollycckett's grave and then to the Chicken Coop for lunch at Mexico, will talk about it at the dinner July 3.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

I attended the graduation at Telstar on Friday, June 8, to see my brother's grandson receive his diploma. I turned back time when I had attended three different graduations for his father for I was his teacher.

Yes, I was a teacher. There were times when I felt I would like to wear the trim uniform of a nurse or to have a salary of a defense worker or to go to work in an office. However, when I thought it through, I knew that most of my compensation did not come from the pay envelope. These were some of the things that paid me most:

I am glad I was a teacher because I was respected. By virtue of my position, I was looked upon as a leader in my community. Moreover, when I asked for credit at the stores, I found that members of my profession were usually classified as 1A.

It was fun to be a teacher because nowhere else could I have had an opportunity to be the idol of 15, 20 or more pairs of eyes. No queen could ever rule more supremely and happily than I. I know that to some poor children, I was a bright spot in their lives. They remembered when years passed for I have many letters, pictures and souvenirs that prove I touched their lives.

Each day brought new and perplexing problems to be solved, which demanded all the tact and patience I possessed. My work was never monotonous. No day was ever the same; that was what made teaching fascinating. To be sure there were times when one felt it necessary to count to 10 before saying anything. And there were other times when an amusing incident made it difficult to keep a straight face.

When I saw my pupils growing and improving day by day, I had a feeling of accomplishment not found in any other work. I could see the results of my efforts and at least the partial accomplishment of my ambitions. It was my exclusive privilege to be proud when Jimmy learned to read or Johnny first learned to write his name well, because I, of all people on earth taught him this.

I had one of the most precious privileges in the world. I had to mold and shape the lives and destinies of the children who were entrusted to me the greater part of the day. In my little room of 15 or 30 pupils, I thought that there might be another Longfellow or Lincoln.

When I taught, I had an opportunity to use my originality and initiative, which might have remained dormant in other work. I was not obliged always to follow a set procedure in teaching. I could use my own mind to invent ways and means of teaching arithmetic. I could use my imagination and make our schoolroom cheery.

When the school year was over and I had worked hard, I had a feeling of satisfaction and accomplishment. Then, too, every year I knew that I had an opportunity personally to progress as I taught my children. I could learn as much from my pupils in one year as I could teach them. Since we never remain stationary, but go either forward or backward, I knew I had a chance always to go forward in my profession. I could augment my life not only by book learning and knowledge, but also by human understanding, sympathy and tolerance.

Finally I am glad that I was a teacher because I have, now, a wealth of happy, comforting and inspiring memories of those children I taught. I may even be justified in feeling that perhaps the world is just a little better because "I taught school."

After church on Sunday, Ann and I stopped at the farm for dinner with Leona and Fay Holt. Rena Curtis, her sons, Carl, Ray and Walter, and their families attended the Telstar graduation to see Carl's son, Kenneth, graduate. Eva Felton had a birthday so received cards and gifts but will celebrate with a party with her daughter, Kathy, on her birthday the last of June.

John Curtis of Buckfield was a recent caller at his mother's. Milton and Eleanor Imman were at their camp Friday evening.

Dorothy and Rena Curtis were in Lewiston on Tuesday.

I had a visitor at 4 a.m. Wednesday, a racoon; guess what it took; the sweet in my hummingbird feeder.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Claire, As I marched along my rural route this morning, I found myself thinking of you. I remembered us as children cutting out paper dolls on your friend's "triple decker" porch, walking up to visit our mutual grandmother (the first "Mud-dy"), doing cartwheels on the lawn at Aunt Nell's. I saw me holding the bike steady as you learned to ride. I saw me in your blue and pink plaid skirt, one of many that came my way once you had outgrown them. I saw you fidgeting, as your mother (my aunt Gen) brushed and brushed your glorious red finger curls in to place. And as I walked, I felt for you.

Through my tears I watched a bobolink soaring low over the newly mown field and I wondered once again if the babies were deep in the grass, safe from the blades of the mower. As I approached the wooden bridge spanning the small river, a pair of thrushes flitted from tree to tree; the tears made them a little blurry, but I knew them by their shape and color. A killdeer hurried on spindly legs to escape me. The comical gait caught my attention and I said to the morning, "We can walk; Claire can not." And that's when I decided that I had to tell you that we will remember. As you lie in your bed, a prisoner of your immobilized body, you should know that your life was important, not just to your immediate family, but to those of us who call you cousin.

You are exciting this or sooner than most of us. But in the time allotted to you, you have known professional success and personal happiness. With love you have given yourself to others so that they may know love. Through love you have given life, and through that life, you have given time to live. Your untimely departure will only serve to remind us of the ephemeral quality of our own existence.

For some of us, nestled here in the foothills, many think that we are safe from the clutches of the "grave reaper." We do chickens and turkeys, welcome guests, travel, visit, plant crops. Seldom, if ever, do we stop to realize that our death is one element over which we have not an ounce of control. We order ourselves and our activities as if we had unlimited life. We plan for the future, unkindling the grand assumption that we'll be here to implement the plan.

Marietta Head, a young college student, recently visited the Soviet Union and recalled her adventure for the Senior Citizens who had gathered for luncheon at our Grange Hall last week. Her grandmother, Olive Head, was in attendance, with West Bethel seniors Iva Abramson, Helen Saunders, Grace Morrill and the Frances Bennetts (I and II).

Linda and Reg Westleigh recently traveled to Nashville for a fun filled week; Freda Davis headed for the Grand Old Opry at the same time. And Dewey and Verna Thayer and Rupert and Ina Grover spent several days on the road to North Carolina for a recent family wedding. The Hostermans took a train ride; the Dan Grovers welcomed an exchange student into their home.

By the time you read this, we will have done yet another of our popular public suppers at the West Bethel Union Church. And the dahlias in my garden will have pushed themselves a few inches closer to their god, the sun.

What I want you to know, dear cousin, is that because of you, I will delight in the dahlias if I am given the chance. I will remind the aforementioned and all others to pay close attention to their lives and to their living. Whenever I walk, I will think of you, of how you danced in the Cantata when we were 10 and of how you had to learn to use a wheelchair when we were 50. I will tell your girls about us girls if they want to listen someday.

Once you are freed of your earthly prison and the essence of that which made you "Claire" floats toward serenity, take with you the knowledge that you are loved; you are part of us; you will be remembered.

Love, C.B.

P.S. The blue plaid skirt was my all-time favorite...

By LORRAINE MILLS

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary will meet Tuesday, June 26, at the Fire Station.

Ralph Mills of Colchester, Vt. came Tuesday to spend a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mills, and his sister, Marcia Smith, came Friday night to spend at least the weekend here. Ralph has been working at his camp in West Greenwood. He took down a tree that was half dead near the shed, mowed the lawn and worked on the electrical system.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary, May 6. On May 5 they visited her sister, Fannie Baker in West Newfield. She celebrated her 80th birthday June 17. She is selling her trailer in West Newfield and is going to board in Farmington, N.H.

We were pleasantly surprised to see Mark Van Horn in church Sunday. He had flown from Kentucky to visit his friend, Jonathan, in Mexico for a week. Jeannette Knight had a visit from great-grandsons, Mark and Christopher Henderson, and their grandmother, Midge Henderson, from Oxford one day recently.

Our former pastor Rev. Lyle Van Horn of Wilmore, Ky., underwent extensive surgery on June 5 in Lexington, Ky. where the surgeons removed a hip replacement that was crumbling and replaced it with a new computer designed hip. The surgery was much more complicated than the doctors anticipated and he had to have over a gallon of blood replaced. They lengthened the leg over an inch and a half and had to stretch the muscles to match. He is presently recuperating at the St. Joseph's Hospital, 41st. Joseph St., Lexington, Ky. 40504, Room 547-2 and hopes to go home in about a week. It will be some time before they will know how successful the operation has been.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight and Marianne went to Sanford for the funeral of Nanette Knight on June 1. She was predeceased by her husband, George Knight.

It was Locke Mills' day at Dr. Lacombe's Thursday with no less than five people from here. John and I were among them.

On June 2, Charlie and Jeannette Knight had a call from Franklin, N.H. that Charlie's sister, Marjorie, was taken to the hospital there. She was at the home of her son, Herbert, where she has been since being in the hospital awhile back. (It is odd sometimes how one has never heard a word or of a place and once having had it called to one's attention it keeps surfacing. One of the places I'd never heard of, or at least had not paid particular attention to, was Franklin, N.H. until we landed there in the middle of the early morning (2 a.m.) when trying to find our way back to the interstate. A couple days later Lillian Herrick is telling me about trying to find Franklin, N.H. early one morning because her daughter, Sharon, had been taken to the hospital there following a serious accident she had been involved in and now it surfaces again.)

Val Greene's daughter, Linda Ryan, and family are spending the weekend at the Greene's home here along with others.

Charlie Knight and grandson, Bruce Campbell, from Oxford went fishing Saturday, June 9, in Andover and Upton.

I've been trying to get my bedroom ready to paper. I don't mind the papering but getting the walls ready is a royal pain in the neck. It doesn't help that I really like the paper that's on there now, but alas, it has gotten so grim and greasy it has to be changed. I also found out that paper has gotten more expensive (what hasn't) but nowhere near the way floor-covering has. When I did this bedroom 12 years ago the paper came from the local swap shop (town dump). (It's now called a recycling center, different name, same function.) and the floorcovering was $12 a square. It will cost at least 10 times that now to replace it and I doubt if I will get 12 years of wear out of it. But at my age I'm not even sure if I'll get 12 years of wear out of me so I'm not going to worry about it. I'll just concern myself in getting it done and right now that looks like a sizeable task.

Dianne Campbell, a granddaughter of Jeannette Knight, is on the Dean's list at University of Southern Maine. She is going one more year to college. She changed from a nursing course to a teaching course last year.

Sunday River

now in order to prevent regulatory delays if it does decide to expand in that direction in the future. Otten said that under its current zoning the land in question could already be used for ski lifts and trails. The change, he said, would allow for base lodge and commercial development.

Otten confirmed that the tentative plan submitted to LURC calls for two to three dozen new ski trails on the land, which lies behind North Peak and extends to Black Mountain in Riley Township.

When Sunday River purchased the IP land, Otten said that approximately 1,500 acres would be suitable for ski trail development. He also noted that the back side of the mountain got plenty of natural snowfall. "It snows more there, about 30 percent more," he said at that time.

Last week, however, he stressed that at this time the skiway was far from committed to such an expansion. "And if we did go ahead," he said, "it would probably be five to ten years out."

He also said the skiway had no immediate plans for building a golf course on the land. LURC Project Analyst David Allen said the Sunday River proposal was somewhat similar to a 1987 request by Saddleback Mountain to expand its skiing terrain in the Sandy River and Dallas plantations, near Rangeley.

But he predicted that the Sunday River rezoning proposal is unlikely to meet the same opposition from environmentalists.

The Saddleback proposal resulted in a prolonged battle with a number of environmental groups, who worried about the effect of the project on the fragile alpine vegetation at the mountain tops and about the aesthetic impact on the nearby Appalachian Trail. The dispute was eventually settled by compromise, with both sides claiming partial victory.

Sunday River's proposal, however, does not involve development of protected alpine regions, and it would not be visible from the Appalachian Trail. Approval, Allen said, could be "relatively routine."

Sunday River appoints director of skiing

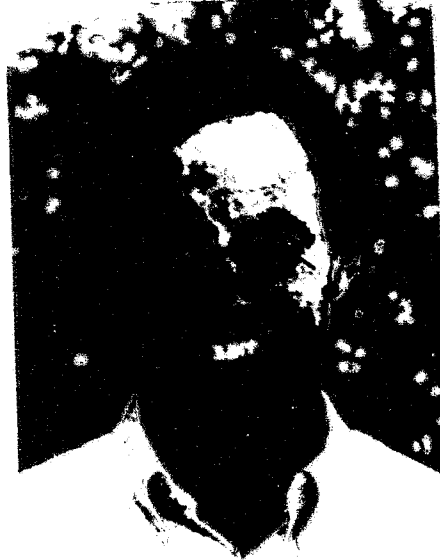

Bob Harkins has been appointed Director of Skiing for Sunday River Ski Resort, according to Leslie B. Otten, president of Sunday River.

Harkins has served as Trail Maintenance Supervisor of Sunday River since 1989, supervising a crew of 15 and overseeing all grooming operations, trail maintenance and trail construction. In addition, Harkins has served as a coach for Sunday River's Junior race program and has been involved in the coordination of Sunday River's racing events.

Prior to coming to Sunday River, Harkins was Development Coach, Director of Athletic Development and Alpine Operations Manager for the United States Ski Team from 1980 to 1988. As such, Harkins managed the U.S. Olympic Ski Team through the 1988 Olympics in Calgary.

In addition, Harkins was Team Captain for the U.S. World Junior Championship Teams 1983 through 1986.

"Having the opportunity to promote Bob from within, illustrates the tremendous resources we have within our employee base," said Leslie Otten. "Bob brings a nationally ranked reputation to Sunday River's Ski Improvement Programs. We're already the leader in the country for Guaranteed-Learn-to-Ski Programs and with Bob's direction, we plan to move ahead with an innovative and exciting approach to teaching and improving skier skills for the upcoming season."

Harkins is a graduate of the University of Maine in Orono and has studied at the University of Innsbruck in Austria. He has appeared in a number of television commercials and served as commentator for ESPN and production director for the Ski School, Race and Freestyle Programs and Children's Programs.

IF YOU CAN'T BUILD OUT, BUILD UP—Unlicensed tire storage sites, such as the one operated by Peter Gordon in Greenwood, are limited to a footprint of 10,000 square feet. As the state Department of Environmental Protection inspected the site last week, Gordon Tire workers were busy reducing the size of the pile's footprint by hauling tires from the edges and stacking them higher and higher at the top.

tends to transfer the tires currently in Albany to the Greenwood site, once a license is received.

The state and town officials toured the Greenwood site for more than an hour Thursday. Gordon accompanied them, explaining the operation of the facility, his plans for it, and complaining of his difficulties dealing with inconsistent regulatory requirements.

As they spoke, Gordon Tire workers were busy gathering tires from the outskirts of the main pile, hauling them to the top of that pile, and stacking them there—thus reducing the overall footprint.

DEP's McCarthy was sympathetic to Gordon's exasperation with the licensing process, and the way his project has been handled by DEP.

"From what I understand it's been kind of a screwed up process," he acknowledged.

McCarthy promised to serve as a contact for Gordon and to help expedite the license, but he warned that unless Gordon brought the site into compliance, "the state is going to have problems," specifically, legal action and fines.

"There's a need for this kind of operation," he told Gordon, "but you have to go by the rules."

Timberlake had also written to Gordon's lawyer on May 24, ordering that operations at the site be halted until Gordon obtained a town permit.

Gordon claimed his lawyer had not told him of the letter, but he said he would attempt to work with the town planning board to acquire the necessary permits.

Planning board member Wayne Haskins said the board recognized that it could prevent Gordon from operating the tire site in Greenwood.

"It's a necessary evil," he said, "but if its going to be here, we want to ensure that it's well run."

Following the inspection, Gordon agreed to stop hauling to the Greenwood site until the size of the pile was reduced.

McCarthy said later that the course of any future DEP enforcement activity would be determined by Gordon's action.

Andover selectmen reach accord with Blue Rock Paving, Inc.

By BARBARA ADAMS

Blue Rock Paving, Inc. Vice President Charles Hascall and Leeds Divisional Manager Mark Humphrey met with the Andover selectmen on June 12 in a friendly meeting, ending months of dispute over road paving the company had done for the town.

Hascall and Humphrey submitted an agreement, which the selectmen signed, stating the selectmen were pleased with the repairs to the road and would pay the balance of the $67,500 cost of the job.

In return, Fred Emerson, chairman of the selectmen, presented the Blue Rock representatives with a check for $39,215, the full balance owed on the paving, plus interest.

Hascall told the selectmen, "We part as friends, will stay as friends and we are very pleased we were able to come to terms and get it done."

He said he felt more discussion should have taken place in the beginning, possibly avoiding a dispute and the company would be aware of that in contacts with future customers.

Humphrey added, "We had trouble on the roads, we admit it, and it wasn't good for both of us. We do follow up on these things."

Haskall asked the selectmen if they had any other paving work they wished completed, but Emerson said that would not be for some time.

As the two left, Emerson assured them, "We'll have you again."

In other business, Everett Mayberry submitted detailed blueprints of a proposed addition to the Town Office which satisfied the selectmen. By the next meeting Mayberry will submit a list of specifications to be put out for bid.

The selectmen asked Mayberry also to check the RTV's on the present furnace to see if it is adequate for the proposed addition.

Administrative Assistant Rebecca Schachter called the Maine Municipal Association, which determined the selectmen do not have to have a special town meeting on the town hall addition or renovation question. The MMA advised that the vote of the townspeople at the annual town meeting in March to hold a special town meeting "a directive, but not a mandate."

The selectmen, however, remain uncertain about the necessity of holding a special meeting and will discuss it again at a future date.

Also, Schachter called Central Maine Power regarding installation of electricity.

boys in this year's fourth grade, and the girls outperformed their male classmates in every area of the test.

This pattern of girls outperforming boys is persistent in the district. By contrast, in the overall state scores, each sex tends to be stronger in certain content areas, but their scores average out overall.

While this year's fourth grade results are impressive, as was the case with the recent eighth grade scores, SAD #44 is excluding significantly more pupils.

The excluded pupils tend to be potentially lower-scoring Chapter I, handicapped or behavioral-problem children.

Their exclusion has the effect of elevating the district's overall scores. Of the 84 fourth graders in the district, four were excluded entirely from the test, and another nine took only parts of it. Scores for the pupils who took only parts of the test are not included in the district's total; consequently, the district average represents the work of only 71 pupils, or 85 percent of those in the class.

By contrast, 93 percent of all fourth graders statewide took the entire test.

The rate of exclusions also contrasts with past practice in SAD #44, where 92 percent of the fourth graders took the entire test last year, and 98 percent took it the year before that.
